Voted 5 out of 5 From the Sallym76 we love it so far! Santa Claus brought the Star Wars version for both of our boys (Eli 11 and 8) and after seeing how much we like, we took one for our daughter as well (ETÃ 4). They are all very motivated to increase their business (not that it was low for and earn coins. I'd like to see Garmin give some reward apps to earn coins for household chores. Right now... Wait. The children are thrilled to have coins. When the novelty fades, I expect to have to provide external rewards like money or something else. I'd love to see Garmin develop some in-app rewards to do chores (new games or moves or stories). Overall, I think it's a great product. Date published: 2018-12-29 Rate 2 out of 5 for baby momomooF4 Unselected. We bought it for our 10-year-old Christmas present. She absolutely loved it! And it was great for a couple of months. Then the battery (which should be life) stopped working. We finally found another one and after I installed it, it worked for about a month and then it stopped working properly. It doesn't show the time, it just shows a couple of things. Honestly, I don't know where he is right now. He's probably stuck on a shelf somewhere. She was so frustrated when it wouldn't work properly and I couldn't make it work or waste the time I did before online and send it back and forth. Next time we'll definitely take another route. Date Published: 2018-10-12 Rate 4 out of 5 by Ryanne from Great Alarm Settings! We bought these for our kids a few days ago and so far we've really enjoyed them. My son has a bit of medical complexity and needs multiple alarms to remind him of his care, and that's perfect for that. I like being able to follow their sleep and activities. The feature that encourages them to be active for 60 minutes a day is also a great feature. My only complaint stopping me from evaluating the five stars is how dark the screen is. It's hard to see, but with the year-long battery life, I guess it's even for the course. Oh, one last awesome feature is that it is waterproof! My kids took a shower and they're still working perfectly. Happy with our choice. Data 2020-03-05 Rate of 5 out of 5 from Noodle of For my Autistic Son. This watch was something I wanted to try b/c we were having a hard time getting are the Autistic son for and are in bed / bathroom, and at what time to go fromin the yard. So I used the watch to keep him from getting mad at us. It's the watch. It works perfectly. I wish you had a couple more options, like asking through my phone without having to press the button on the clock, I'm sure there's a more expensive one out there. It's waterproof, so it's also a big problem. The point system for the game that we do not use at all. I'm sure they didn't do it for an autistic child. When they do, I'll focus on that. It is easy to use and not too complicated. Date of publication: 2018-10-09 Voted 3-to-5 by Sherry from Love the watch, I hate bands. My boys love to beat their step records and compete with their friends and teachers at school. How many steps do you have today? And, of course, video games. But we don't like bands. They don't last. The bands purchased at Christmas were falling apart by the end of June/July. Unfortunately, during the summer, one of our watches got lost in a river during camping because © He fell off the beam! My 10-year-old son was super upset. And I can't justify buying another one. All the bands we've had "3" so far have somehow collapsed within six to seven months of their birth. It's a real shame. Date of publication: 2018-10-06 Vote 4 to 5 from smallsii by Grande for my 2nd Grader I love most of everything about it. A friend recommended the product because © I needed help with my son's transition to clandestine schoolwork now that we have to go home to school. Often when you spend too much time on an object and you lose track of time to try to accomplish all or objects in one day. The clock has so many things that I like and he loves the look and the alarms too. What I don't understand is why © has a maximum number of ten alarms. This is not enough for us to plan every transition in our Please update this function. I think it's silly to limit the number of alarms. Date of publication: 2020-04-15 Vote 4 to 5 by SBrown from They're good. We are happy with the watch. Even if for children it has a defect. If children have to wear to record their movements then the screen should not have a small button in which dirt and debris can enter. By the first week the sand made the button not work well. We brought him to a watch repair shop. He couldn't help us because the life was just for Garmin. So, to fix it, we should send it back. Even though the problem is, the button will only get dirty again. So, it's not worth worrying. I strongly believe that design should be updated if you want to make this baby easy to wear at any time. Options for collecting coins for tasks is a nice feature. In addition, timer children can set if the button worked well. Date of publication: 2021-04-07 Vote 3 out of 5 from Buster of Very cool but the screen is very dark. I bought it for my son while he takes a walk to school. It is a very light weight, easy to wear and easy to configure with the app. However the screen is very dark. I spent centuries trying to figure out if there was a plastic film on it and then I looked on Google how to light the screen but nothing worked and it seems that it is only very dark that makes it more difficult to read. Also to set up the family app the questions were a little difficult I heard how not everyone is aware of the names of the body bones or what foods are rich in iron.
